

Employer-Employee Service Agreements

Employer-Employee Service Agreements are directed towards employees who are recipients of planned benefits such as health insurance, commissions, bonuses, stock options, and company sponsored retirement plans. For each of these benefits, the employee has certain obligations to the employer. Generally speaking, the benefits are tied to length of service. Such agreements are designed specifically by the employer and both the employer and employee agree to the terms of the agreement by signing the document.

Freedom Financial Services has several different forms of employer/employee agreements. To request a copy, go to the Contact Us page of this website.
